*2016 Dealer Service Technician Study

Ralph Braun was just a boy in 1947 when doctors told him muscular dystrophy would soon rob him of his independence. It was a fate he refused to accept. He went on to invent the first battery-powered scooter, and later, converted an old postal jeep - complete with a wheelchair ramp and full hand-controls - into a vehicle that would give him the freedom he longed for.

Ralph's amazing life was just the start of the BraunAbility story. We were founded by a man who refused to be defined by his limitations. Today, we continue Ralph's mission of providing others the same freedom he fought for in his own life.
